

Allan J. Ring

Allan Ring is a retired Military Policeman with over 22 years in the Army and an extremely diverse background in security and executive protection. Allan received incredible training with several federal, state, and local agencies and was hand-selected for numerous special assignments throughout his career. Some of his assignments were entry team leader for a Special Reaction Team (SRT), Special Agent on multiple Executive Protection Details to include leading the Secretary of Defense Protection detail and culminating as the Special Security Officer for a Joint Interagency Task force underneath Joint Special Operations Command, where he retired from.

Allan received several certifications throughout his career, such as Active Shooter Threat Response Instructor from Department of Homeland Security, Counter IED Instructor, Tactical Site Exploitation Instructor, and Master Driver Certified. Allan also works as an adjunct instructor, teaching his passion for Advanced Dignitary and Executive Protection with R.L. Oatman and Associates as an IADLEST certified program.

Throughout Allan's career he has been assigned overseas in over 16 countries and conducted joint training with over 30 countries. He trained with international partners on Executive Protection, combat operations, firearms proficiency, basic policing and patrol operations, even airborne operations earning three different foreign jump wings. Allan has a unique ability of incorporating information, real world experience, and cultural differences in order to build cohesive teams and training events.