

Morris Greenberg

Moe Greenberg has nearly 27 years of distinguished law enforcement experience, with a career primarily focused on conducting successful criminal investigations and training both current and aspiring police officers. He has served in various specialized units, including homicide, child sexual abuse, and special victim's units, with a particular expertise in domestic and intimate partner violence, gender-based violence, and trauma.

In addition to his investigative work, Moe has over fifteen years of experience in adult education. He has taught at police academies and universities, developing courses for both undergraduate and graduate students in traditional and online settings. His teaching extends to judges, attorneys, forensic nurse examiners, and organizations such as the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Moe views law enforcement as a dynamic learning profession and is committed to equipping officers with the necessary knowledge and tools to effectively serve their communities. His dedication to education and training underscores his belief in the importance of continuous learning and adaptation in law enforcement.
