

Bryan Pizzuti is an active law enforcement command officer with over 23 years of experience. Bryan currently serves as a Detective Lieutenant for Bloomfield Township Police Department. He has also served as Patrol Lieutenant, Patrol Sergeant, Investigations Support Sergeant, and was a Task Force Officer with a Federal Task Force. Furthermore, he serves as the Major Cases Assistance Team Coordinator that assists with serious criminal investigations.

Bryan is currently the in-house Department Training Coordinator. Prior to becoming the Training Coordinator, he served as the lead defensive tactics instructor. In 2009 he re-wrote and developed the Department's Defensive Tactics Program. Bryan currently is an Active Shooter Response, De-Escalation, and Use of Force Instructor.

Bryan has developed and implemented self-protection and defense programs for community members. He has also provided professional development training to emergency communicators and fire/rescue personnel which includes leadership, de-escalation, and critical thinking.

Bryan believes that the primary insight of a trainer should be the student first, and continual study of the craft that is being instructed. Knowledge and belief in research, study and questioning of all the areas instructed to stay current, relevant and impactful in students/trainees served.
