

Marc P. Fioravanti

An active sworn deputy sheriff and nationally recognized law enforcement instructor, Marc has over fourteen years' experience in detention services and law enforcement operations. A former jail supervisor, administrator, and training academy director, Marc has a comprehensive understanding of the pre- and post- trial process. As a sworn deputy sheriff, Marc provides effective enforcement through the preservation of constitutional rights. He's focused on serving his community and changing the landscape in positive and lasting ways. He currently serves as a sergeant in the Special Operations Division.

A criminal justice faculty member, Marc has over a decade of experience in higher education including teaching, curriculum development, and program administration. A state-certified firearms, driving, rapid deployment, subject control, and physical fitness instructor, Marc has taught thousands of hours of pre- and post-curricula throughout the State of North Carolina. Additionally, Marc provides effective mentorship for new and developing instructors as a lecturer in the general instructor program.

A Force Science® Certified Use of Force Analyst, Marc's primary subject matter expertise consists in the use of force prevention, application, investigation, and review. Marc's academic research focuses on constitutional law, specifically, the 4th, 8th, and 14th Amendments